

Forever float that standard sheet! Where breathes the foe but falls before us? With Freedom's soil beneath our feet, And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

The "Orders" of the President.

We like the President's "orders." He has taken command of the ship himself, and will receive the enthusiastic support of the whole loyal people in his vigorous and determined policy.

The Evacuation of Manassas.

The particulars of the evacuation of Manassas reach us by telegraph to-day. It is evident that the rebels left their stronghold in some haste, although it is probable they have been about it some weeks, having removed all their heavy guns. The large amount of army stores and tents left behind makes it evident that the great rebel army, previous to their departure, became greatly demoralized, and finally fled in a panic from some imaginary cause, as it does not appear that they were in much greater danger from our army than they had been previously.

It seems they played their old game of deception, commenced at Mansou's hill, by placing painted logs of wood upon their fortifications at Centerville. The first time this was a very good joke, but our commanders must be greatly chagrined at permitting this weak invention to deceive them again. It would be an interesting subject for investigation by the committee on the conduct of the war, to ascertain how long wooden cannon and stove pipe batteries have kept our grand army in check, and imposed a fearful blockade upon the Potomac.

Some mention is made of a probable stand to be made by the rebel army south of the Rappahannock, about twenty miles north of Richmond, or at Gordonsville, about seventy miles north-west of the latter city, but if the rebels are as much demoralized as indications lead us to suppose, they will not stop short of the gulf states.

Everybody would be gratified in the belief that at last "Washington is safe," but for the approach of another army from the south, who are menacing the capitol, if not by arms, at least by numbers. The roads leading to Washington are said to be full of contrabands, making their way north while their masters are running south. Here will be another elephant for the government.

We trust these slaves will gain their freedom while they can, and we shall not regret to hear that they swarm through the streets of Washington and overflow into the passages of the capitol, until, by their numbers, they force upon the attention of congress the great evil which their condition brings upon the country.

It has been feared that the retreating rebel army would move upon Gen. Burnside's columns and find him unprepared, but we have great faith that he is not one of that style of generals who can be caught in that way. The late news from Hatteras indicates that he has been largely reinforced recently. So we think there need be no fears on his account.

THE FUN COMMENCED.—The publication of Fremont's defence has raised a row. The congressional committee on the conduct of the war have summoned the correspondents of the New York Tribune before them to explain how it was obtained. The Philadelphia Inquirer says it has created an emule in the cabinet, and unless it can be satisfactorily accounted for, one of the members will probably withdraw. This doubtless means Blair, who, in one of the private letters to Fremont, published with the defence, complains of Mr. Lincoln's whig characteristics, and that Mr. Chase never voted a democratic ticket in his life.

It was all nice and smooth sailing when a former investigating committee opened the doors of its sessions to the enemies of Fremont and allowed the ex parte testimony taken last summer to be published as soon as it could be transcribed and printed, and when Adj. Gen. Thomas let his pettifoggery and lying report go to the public; but now official dignity has been insulted, and there is a row on general principles. How does the immaculate Blair feel about these days?

—Lay on McDuff, And it—be to who first cries hold, enough!"

POSTSCRIPT.—Fremont's triumph is complete! He has been assigned to an important command.

It is told of a Connecticut field officer, better acquainted with farming than soldiering, that when circumstances placed him in command of his regiment at Hatteras, he wished to oblique his column in marching, and he gave the order, "hew around that mud-puddle."

The average value of male slaves at present in South Carolina, as shown by the auction sales, &c., is $315—females $400. Thus it appears that for the first time in the history of that state male slaves are of much less value than females.

The New York Journal of Commerce says a diligent inquiry has failed to detect any counterfeit of the United States five dollar demand notes in that city, and the whole story is doubtless the invention of the parties who promulgated it.

The Cumberland and Roanoke were of an antiquated pattern, slow sailers, and ill-adapted to the requirements of modern warfare. The Cumberland was built at Charlestown, Mass., in 1842, hence is 20 years old, and before she was destroyed, was probably in a condition that demanded rebuilding, or at least extensive repairs. She was staunch, heavily timbered, and not a favorite with sailors or officers. Her measurement was 1,726 tons, and though pierced for only 24 guns, she was of great weight of metal, which she was well able to carry. A tragic interest belongs to the fate of the old frigate, sunk a shattered wreck by her late consort at the Gosport yard, the latter risen from her own destruction to visit fearful violence upon her adversary.

The Kittery was one of the old frigates built at Kittery, Maine, in 1842, hence is 20 years old, and, like the Cumberland, ready to be overhauled and built up anew. She was a "butter-tub," and as such in these times, was useless, except as a store or receiving ship. She was rated at 50 guns; her tonnage was 1,867. When the attack was made she had not, we hear, a full crew.

The Roanoke, only mentioned in this fight as the flag ship of the squadron, disabled previously by the breaking of her shaft, is still larger than the Merrimac, though never so much a favorite. She measures 3,400, was pierced for 40 guns, and is in all other respects much like the other screw steamers of her class.

The Minnesota is also a first-class steamer, exactly the size and measurement of the Merrimac, though of a different and we believe an inferior model. It is a part of the good fortune of the day that she was run ashore out of the reach of the destruction that overtook the sailing vessels of the blockading fleet.

The St. Lawrence is an old-class frigate of 50 guns, built at the Gosport navy yard in 1847, and up to the commencement of the war passed most of her time in ordinary at Kittery.

The Jamestown was in peaceful times the consort of the Yorktown, and both were moderate sized sea-going steamers of ordinary construction, constituting the New York and Richmond line. Both have been altered into gunboats, and figured briefly in this fight. The Jamestown has been recently described by one who saw her while rebuilding, as furnished with a heavy, clumsy and ridiculous-looking iron-prow in front, the point of which barely projects above the water. To all appearance the ship is not razed at all, iron-plated, or pierced for broadside guns. Her batteries seem to consist of a 52-pound rifled gun fore and aft.

The only remarkable alteration observable in her was the removal of masts and rail, and the increased deck room afforded.

The Monitor we have already described, but we repeat so far as to say that her model is entirely new, and was originated by J. Ericsson, of New York. She is called a battery, and is 172 feet long, 41 feet broad, 11 1/2 feet deep, 10 feet draught, 1,255 tons measurement, speed 9 miles per hour, cost $275,000, was built in New York, in 100 days, requiring the constant labor of 1,000 men. She was completed just in time to fulfil the contract, and to save us from a disastrous naval defeat.

As originally built, the Merrimac was one of the most complete pieces of marine architecture ever put afloat. She came off the stocks at Charlestown, Massachusetts, in 1855, and from that day down to the moment she fell into rebel hands, she was the pride and boast of every American sailor. She measures 3,200 tons, and originally carried or was pierced for 40 guns. The changes in armament reduced the number while they increased the weight of metal. The elegance and perfection of her model, and the force of her engine which gave motion to her screw, made her unusually fast, even in a rough sea, and her night and strength gave her, as naval battles were once fought, before the days of rifled guns and iron plates, the character of invincibility.

Commodore Dupont's second naval expedition has been signally successful. The first place approached was Brunswick, Ga., the enemy flying at the approach of our gunboats. He took possession, and left a gunboat in charge. This gives the government control of the whole coast of Georgia, from South Carolina to Florida. The fleet next went thirty miles south to Cumberland Sound, the entrance to Fernandina harbor, and when in sight of Fort Clinch, the enemy were discovered lying. After firing a few shots we immediately took possession of the fort. A train of cars was observed leaving Fernandina, the track of which road runs three miles along shore. A gunboat threw some shells at the train, causing some passengers to jump off. Among them is said to be ex-Senator Yulee, of Florida.

Twelve large guns fell into our hands, including one 120-pound rifled cannon. Also, considerable ammunition. We also captured the rebel steamer Darlington, loaded with wagons and ammunition. Gen. Wright's forces were landed and garrisoned the fort and earthworks, also taking possession of the city. Most of the male inhabitants had fled. This has been one of the most useful ports to the rebels. The object of the expedition has thus been accomplished.

The Detroit Advertiser of the 6th inst., makes the following record: To-day will be rendered famous in history by the sitting, in this city, of the democratic state convention. While twenty thousand brave and loyal Michigan soldiers are fighting to uphold this government, a few rabid demagogues in the rear are plotting to tear it down.

An effort was made yesterday to secure the use of Men's Hall for holding the convention, but it is reported that the management objected at first to allowing the hall to be used for any anti-bank exhibition whatever.

CANAL TOLLS.—Industrious efforts are being made to increase the rate of tolls on the New York canals. The Buffalo papers protest against the change.

REPORTED FOR THE DAILY GAZETTE, BY WISCONSIN STATE TELEGRAPH LINE. Office in Union Passenger Depot.

Last Night's Report.

Boston, March 11. The schooner J. M. Chapman arrived here from New York, and reports on the 2d inst., that she fell in with the frigate Vermont. She lay by her till the 6th, and left her in latitude 39° 46', longitude 68° 8', drifting southeast, two knots per hour, masts, sails and anchors gone and completely helpless. She needs powerful tugs at once to assist her into port.

New York, March 11. The barque Edmund Dwight, from Trinidad, Cuba, reports on the 8th inst., latitude 35°, longitude 74°, spoke the United States gunboat Saxon, having in tow the British schooner British Queen, captured off Wilmington, North Carolina, while attempting to run the blockade. The Saxon was in search of the United States frigate Vermont. The brig Isabel, Capt. Tama, arrived at this port, to-day, from Port-au-Prince, and reports that a severe shock of an earthquake was felt at that place on the 19th of February, at 4 a. m.

WASHINGTON, March 11. Special to the Post.—The President will probably sign the bill establishing the new title of navy, to-day. It forbids officers of the army and navy returning fugitives to their masters.

Lieut. Worden, the gullant commander of the Monitor, is here, and is rapidly recovering from his wounds.

WASHINGTON, March 11. Official information, to-day, reports that the enemy, formerly encamped back of and below Occoquan, have retreated, destroying everything they could not carry on their backs. They left on Saturday. Our troops took possession this morning, and are welcomed by the inhabitants with great joy. Every boat in the vicinity, and everything that would float, had been destroyed. The rebels told the villagers they were going to fall back to the Rappahannock. A call from the Governor of Virginia on the militia of the state, for one thousand men, was proclaimed in the streets of Occoquan, on the 9th inst. Nearly all the able bodied men of the village left with the rebel army. A few refused to go. The rebel force, which has thus retreated, was composed of three Texas, one Georgia and Mississippi regiments, and the Hampton Legion.

Com. Vanderbilt gave notice, to-day, to the Postmaster General that he would carry the Central American and South Pacific mails, on his line of steamers, provided he could be protected against parties who were smuggling the California mails over his line for which he receives no payment.

St. Louis, March 11. The following is the official report of Gen. Curtis:

Headquarters of Army of South-West, Fort Smith, Ark., March 11. GENERAL.—On Thursday, the 6th inst., the enemy commenced an attack on our right, assaulting and following the rear guard of a detachment under Sigel, to my main line on Sugar Creek Hollow, but ceased firing when he met my reinforcements at about 4 P. M. During the night he had moved on so as to attack my right in rear. Therefore on the 7th, I ordered a change of front to right, on my right, which thus becoming my left, still rested on Sugar Creek Hollow. This brought my line across Pea Ridge, with my new right resting on the head of Cross Timber Hollow, which is the head of Big Sugar Creek.

I also ordered an immediate advance of cavalry and light artillery, under Col. Osterhaus, with orders to break what I supposed would be the reinforced line of the enemy. This movement was in progress when the enemy, about 11 A. M., commenced an attack on my right. The fight continued mainly at these points, during the day, the enemy having gained a point, hotly contested by Col. Carr at Cross Timber Hollow, but entirely repulsed with the fall of their commander, McCulloch, in the center, by the forces under Col. Davis.

The plan of attack on the center was gallantly carried forward by Col. Osterhaus, who was immediately sustained and supported by Col. Davis' entire division, supported, also, by Sigel's command, which had remained, till near the close of the day, on the left. Col. Carr's division held the right under a galling and continuous fire, all day.

In the evening, the firing having entirely ceased on the center, and there having been none on the left, I re-enforced the right by a portion of the 2d division, under Asboth.

Before the day closed I was convinced that the enemy had concentrated his main force on the right. I, therefore, commenced another change of front forward, so as to face the enemy, who had deployed on my right flank in strong position. The change had been only partially effected, but was fully in progress, when at sun rise, on the 8th, my right and center renewed the firing upon the enemy with renewed energy, all along the whole extent of the line. My left, under Sigel, moved close to the hills occupied by the enemy, driving him from the heights, advancing steadily toward the head of the hollows. I immediately ordered the center and right wings forward. The right turning the left of the enemy, and cross bring on his center. This final position placed the enemy in a circle. A change of infantry, extending throughout the whole line, completely routed the whole rebel force, which fled in great confusion, but rather safely through a deep and impassable defile of cross timber.

Our loss is heavy. The enemy's can never be ascertained, for the dead are scattered over a large field, and his wounded, too, many of them, will be lost and perish. The foe is scattered in all directions, but I think his main force has retreated, but towards Kittery, where his cavalry is pursuing him towards the mountains, scouring the country, bringing in prisoners, and trying to find the rebel Maj. Gen. Van Dorn, who had command of the entire force.

I have not as yet the statement of the dead and wounded, so as to justify a report, but I will refer you to a despatch, I will forward very soon.

Officers and soldiers have displayed such unequalled gallantry, I hardly dare to make distinctions. I must, however, name the commanders of divisions: General Sigel gallantly carried the heights and drove back the left wing of the enemy; Asboth, who is wounded in the arm, in his gallant effort to reinforce the right; Colonel and acting Brigadier General Davis, who commanded the center, where McCulloch fell on the 7th, and pressed forward the center on the 8th; Colonel and acting Brig. Gen. Carr is also wounded in the arm, and was under the continuous fire of the enemy during the two hardest days of the struggle. Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio and Missouri, may proudly share the honor of the victory, which their gallant heroes won over the combined forces of Van Dorn, Price and McCulloch, at Pea Ridge, in the Ozark mountains of Arkansas. I have the honor to be, general, your obedient servant,

[Signed] SAMUEL R. CURTIS, Brigadier General.

The Black Swan.—Miss Greenfield is concertizing in Montreal.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

MILWAUKEE, March 12. By last night's dispatches we get full particulars of the battle in Arkansas. The attack was commenced on Thursday, 6th inst., by the enemy, and lasted until Saturday, resulting in the complete route of the rebels, with the loss of at least 1,000 killed and wounded. Our loss is about 450 killed and wounded.

The rebels have fallen back on the Rappahannock. Rebel accounts, via Fortress Monroe, say the Merrimac was damaged, but not seriously, and acknowledge four killed and several wounded in her.

The Norfolk Day Book says the Monitor was seriously injured, and reports our loss at 600 to 1,200.

FORTRESS MONROE, March 11. The Beaufort correspondent of the Day Book says that the Nashville is now lying at Morehead City. One hundred vessels are reported at Hatteras, supposed to contain reinforcements for Gen. Burnside. Ocracoke Inlet is said to be blocked up with stone vessels. Virginia has been called upon for four thousand additional troops.

WASHINGTON, March 11. Six southern men voted aye, and nine nay, in the house, to-day, on the President's emancipation resolution. The others from the border states were not in their seats.

Herald's dispatch.—Before dark, last night, Col. Averill, with a large body of cavalry, entered the far famed works at Manassas, and bivouacked for the night amidst the ruins of rebel stronghold.

The intelligence gathered at Manassas, and in the neighborhood, tends to show that the whole rebel army has retired southward. It is not credited that they will attempt to make a stand near here, as the country is open, level, and unpromising for defensive warfare. The opinion is gaining ground that Gordonsville was simply the rendezvous for what was lately the rebel army of the Potomac, as it is the junction of the Orange & Alexandria railroad with the Virginia Central railroad.

The only point at which they can with any sort of confidence attempt to make a stand, is near the junction of the Frederick and Potomac, with the Central Virginia railroad, in which neighborhood the North Anna and South Anna rivers unite and form the Pamunty river, about 20 miles north of Richmond. At this point the country is much broken and admirably fitted for defense. It is reported that the rebels have destroyed the railroad bridge across the north Rappahannock. In their haste they have left behind straggling parties of soldiers, who seem to be very glad to be made prisoners.

Wherever they have gone it is evident that their army is completely demoralized, and utterly unfit for service. The moral effect of the retreat from Manassas to Richmond will be the same throughout the south as it is in this part of Virginia. The impression prevails that the southern confederacy has collapsed, and many of the people think God for it.

The forts are all abandoned, but log huts, hundreds in number, and ample to accommodate fully 30,000 troops still remain; also immense numbers of tents. Heaps of dead horses cover the fields in the vicinity. The log huts are strewn all along between Centerville and Manassas. The railroad track is undisturbed except the bridges. The stone bridge across Bull Run on the Warrenton turnpike is blown up, as also the bridge across Cab Run, between Centerville and Manassas.

Everything at Manassas indicated the precipitate flight of the rebels. Some cannons were found, but no guns; piles of bullets and cartridges were left and an immense quantity of quartermaster's stores. In one place was discovered about 30,000 bushels of corn which had been set on fire, and was still smouldering. Among the trophies are pack saddles, army orders, muskets, revolvers, cartridges, letters, &c. Over 1,000 pack saddles were found, all new and marked "C. S. A."

People in the vicinity state that prior to the evacuation, there were 100,000 troops at Manassas and Centerville. Covering the breastworks were what appeared to be cannon, but on examination they proved to be wooden affairs got up for effect. Two Pennsylvania cavalry regiments were the first Union troops entering Centerville. At Brentville, four miles from Manassas, a home guard had been organized to protect themselves against the secessionists.

Gen. McClellan has taken up his headquarters at Fairfax Court House. A dispatch has been received here contradicting the announcement that Winchester was occupied yesterday by our troops, and stating that it is held by a rebel force. It is believed here by the best informed critics on military affairs, that the rebels there are simply a portion of the Virginia militia, left there to cover the retreat of the main body of rebels. It is not probable that any considerable force would be maintained in that part of Virginia, after the evacuation of Manassas, which commands the only rail road avenue thence to Richmond.

WASHINGTON, March 11. Large numbers of contrabands have reached our lines, which now extend beyond Manassas Junction, and are still coming in by droves. The contrabands at Centerville are greatly misrepresented. They were not of the formidable character supposed. The enemy, before evacuating, had somewhat injured them by breaking the embankments.

On our troops arriving at Fairfax Court House they found no more than a dozen families. The soldiers searched in the court house and brought away some of the records, but this being discovered the officers directed their return.

When our troops learned that Manassas was evacuated their spirits suddenly became depressed, as they had anticipated a spirited conflict with the enemy.

New York, March 11. The result of the New Hampshire election, in 109 towns, gives Barry 22,998; Clark 20,400, Wheeler 1,042. It is believed that Gov. Barry's majority over all will be about 1,500. The republican majority in the house will be from 60 to 75. The republicans have also probably elected 10 out of the 12 senators, and four of the councilors.

The steamer Philadelphia arrived, to-night, from Pickens 1st, Tortugas 4th, Key West 6th. Gen. Arnold was in command at Port Pickens, Col. Brown having sailed for New York. Troops at Port Pickens all well. Contrabands from Pensacola report a rebel regiment had left, and two unarmed regiments had arrived. Henderson was to be court martialled for commencing the bombardment of January 1st.

WASHINGTON, March 12. By an arrival at the navy yard to-day, it is ascertained that the rebel batteries were evacuated at Aquia Creek yesterday morning. Whether permanently or not we have not ascertained.

Gen. Fremont will return to Washington either this evening or to-morrow morning. Repairs have already been commenced at Bull Run, and the probabilities are the railroad to Manassas will be in running order this week.

The following orders by the president were published by authority in the Intelligence this morning. Their importance and bearing are manifest:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Jan. 27, 1862. THE PRESIDENT'S GENERAL ORDER NO. 1. Ordered, also, that the country west of the Department of the Potomac, and east of the Department of the Mississippi, be a military department, and the same be commanded by Major Gen. Fremont. That all commanders of departments after the receipt of this order, respectively report severally and directly to the secretary of war; that prompt and frequent reports will be expected of all.

(Signed) ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

[HURRAH FOR FREMONT.]

New York, March 12. An Elizabeth City, N. C., letter, March 11th, to the Tribune says: Gen. Briggs with his forces, numbering 7,000, had arrived at Norfolk yesterday, from Pensacola, which place he evacuated after destroying the fortifications, guns, &c. It is also said that the rebels are calling all their spare forces into Norfolk, that they may be ready for any emergency. The force at Newbern and other points in this state, numbering from 20,000 to 30,000 drilled soldiers, together with the rebel forces at Richmond and Norfolk, will it is thought be thrown in the rear of the main force attacking Norfolk from this direction. Therefore, the last grand battle of the campaign may be fought in this struggle to save Norfolk, should that city be attacked soon.

WASHINGTON, March 12. House.—Mr. Edwards introduced a joint resolution tendering the thanks of congress to J. Ericsson for his enterprise and skill displayed in the construction of the Monitor, and to Lieut. Worden, officers and men, for services rendered. Referred to committee on naval affairs.

Mr. McPherson introduced a joint resolution which was referred to fill vacancy in the board of regents.

WASHINGTON, March 7, 1862. Special dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer.—The Secretary of War has informed a friend of General Fremont that no court of inquiry would be ordered in his case, as there was nothing on which to base it.

Mr. Slidell is living in magnificent apartments in the Champs Elysees, No. 30. He pays 1,800 francs a month, and assumes all the importance of a regular envoy from the United States. He is not, however, made a lion of, though it is said his taste would render such a position agreeable to him. He is doing all in his power to encourage southerners to take up their quarters in Paris during the season.

Legislative.

TUESDAY, March 11.

SENATE.—Mr. Foster, from the committee on finance, submitted an interesting report, setting forth an estimate of the probable expenditures for the next fiscal year.

Mr. Miller, of Rock county, introduced a resolution requesting the select committee to report a bill fixing licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors at a rate that will operate as a prohibition on the traffic.

Assembly.

A resolution was introduced to adjourn on the 20th inst. to the 4th of June, lies over.

Mr. Miller, of Rock county, introduced a resolution requesting the select committee to report a bill fixing licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors at a rate that will operate as a prohibition on the traffic.

Two local bills vetoed by the Governor were passed over the veto. Gov. Harvey has sought to discourage local legislation and introduce the policy, contemplated by the constitution, of enacting general laws under which local corporations may be formed.

The Governor vetoes the bill authorizing the issue of $50,000 in bonds to take up those falling due next month, on the ground that the bill does not conform to the requirements of the constitution.

All kinds of Headache.

By the use of these pills the periodic attacks of Nervous or Sick Headache may be prevented; and if taken at the commencement of an attack immediate relief from pain and sickness will be obtained.

They seldom fail in removing Nausea and Headache to which females are so subject.

They act gently upon the bowels—removing Obstructions.

For Literary Men, Students, delicate females, and all persons of sedentary habits, they are valuable as a Laxative, improving the appetite, giving tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and restoring the natural elasticity and strength of the whole system.

The CEPHALIC PILLS are the result of long investigation and carefully conducted experiments, having been in use many years, during which time they have prevented and relieved a vast amount of pain and suffering from headache, whether originating in the nervous system or from a deranged state of the stomach.

They are entirely vegetable in their composition, and may be taken at all times with perfect safety without making any change of diet, and the absence of any disagreeable taste renders it easy to administer the children.

Cephalic Pills
CURE
Nervous Headache
Headache

By the use of these pills the periodic attacks of Nervous or Sick Headache may be prevented; and if taken at the commencement of an attack immediate relief from pain and sickness will be obtained. They seldom fail in removing Nausea and Headache to which females are so subject. They act gently upon the bowels—removing Constipation.

For Elderly Men, Students, delicate females, and all persons of sedentary habits, they are valuable as a Laxative, improving the appetite, giving tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and restoring the natural elasticity and strength of the whole system.

The CEPHALIC PILLS are the result of long investigation and carefully conducted experiments, having been in use many years, during which time they have proved and relieved a vast amount of pain and suffering from nervous headache, whether originating in the nervous system or from a deranged state of the stomach. They are entirely vegetable in their composition, and may be taken at all times with perfect safety without making any change of diet, and the absence of any disagreeable taste renders it easy to administer the child-dram.

By the use of these pills the periodic attacks of Nervous or Sick Headache may be prevented; and if taken at the commencement of an attack immediate relief from pain and sickness will be obtained. They seldom fail in removing Nausea and Headache to which females are so subject. They act gently upon the bowels—removing Constipation.

For Elderly Men, Students, delicate females, and all persons of sedentary habits, they are valuable as a Laxative, improving the appetite, giving tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and restoring the natural elasticity and strength of the whole system.

The CEPHALIC PILLS are the result of long investigation and carefully conducted experiments, having been in use many years, during which time they have proved and relieved a vast amount of pain and suffering from nervous headache, whether originating in the nervous system or from a deranged state of the stomach. They are entirely vegetable in their composition, and may be taken at all times with perfect safety without making any change of diet, and the absence of any disagreeable taste renders it easy to administer the child-dram.
